Are you interested in wood or paper science?

If so our Fibres and Chemicals Program is seeking two enthusiastic and versatile scientists to enhance a team committed to the improvement of processes and productivity in the pulp and paper industry. In one area of the programme we are particularly focussing on the quality of the wood resource and how this relates to paper products.

The first position is in an area dealing with the fundamental factors that influence pulp and paper properties. You will have or will develop experience in paper testing, together with a knowledge of the paper industry and its products.

Our second position is to research mechanisms controlling wood cell morphology and the quality of pulpwood resources. We prefer a background in tree breeding and silviculture together with a knowledge of sampling procedures.

Applicants should have a PhD, or equivalent in a relevant field, together with a proven record of achievement in independent research or relevant industrial experience. The nature of qualifications and experience will be factors determining the salary package.

Dr Geoffrey Gartside can provide further details of either positions' requirements and may be contacted on (03) 542 2209. A selection criteria and duty statement may be obtained from Ms Maria Germano on (03) 542 2217. Both may be contacted by facsimile on (03) 543 6613.

Please forward your application with details of skills, qualifications, work achievements and the names of at least two referees to: The Chief, CSIRO Division of Forest Products, Private Bag 10, Clayton Vic 3168, Australia by 13th December, 1991.
